Use the checklist below and the space provided to develop your case study.

Developing A Mini Case Study

A case study is a particular instance of something used or analyzed in order to illustrate a thesis or principle. You will develop a mini case study where you compare methods used in the U.S. and another country to address the issue of cybersecurity. You can focus on any category/type of data that must or should be protected in order to illustrate examples for the selected country. Below are attributes required in the case study.

Checklist:

- Country of choice clearly identified
- Detailed description of the type of data to be used for comparison
- Examples of how data is protected for both U.S. and the other country
- Examples of data breaches (real or imagined) and potential results
- Comparison of similarities and differences between cybersecurity methods
- List of sources of information
